ROUSTABOUTS' SONGS.

VOCAL MUSIC ON BOAT AND LEVEE AT NEW ORLEANS

After the Last Sale of Cotton Has Been Rolled on Board—Weird Melodies and Patriotic Strains—Quaint Verse and Song.

The last bale of cotton having been rolled on board with many a "heave ho" from the dark crew, the happiest hour in the Mississippi river roustabout is at hand. Boasting on railing, rope coils and cotton bales on the rear deck like a convention of delighted scarecrows, they are waiting to respond to the farewell songs of friends and sweethearts congregated on the levee.

"Farewell, brothers, if you're twice fo' to go, We'll weep fo' to see you face once mo'," wails out a dusky maiden on the shore, and "On de levee by de ribber side," roll the united voices.

"I've left my girl in New Orleans, Fo' she is young, jes in her teens," trills a thin tenor from the deck and again "On de levee by de ribber side," swells the refrain:

"Ducks play evards an' chickens drinks wine, An' de monkey grow on de grape vine. Co'n'ta'ch pulling and tapoca pie. Oh! de gray cat pick out de black cat's eye!" thrillingly announces the heavy bass, while the dual crowd breaks into united rhythmic away at the rousing refrain:

"Walk that, Loo, O Miss Loo! An' ah! ah! heah we go! Fo' we ah gwine fo' to leave you, good-by, good-by! Fo' we ah gwine fo' to leave you, good-by, Liza Jane."

The echo scarcely dies away when a rival songster on the shore begins:

"Monkey dress in soldier cloze: All cross ober to Jordan! Went out in de woods fo' to drill de crowd: O! Ja-ru-sa-lem! Jay bird sat on ole history limb; All cross ober to Jordan! I up wid a rock and hit him on de chin; O! Ja-ru-sa-lem!"

And then the excited crowd sweeps with wild enthusiasm into:

"Shine on! Shine on! All cross ober to Jordan! Then shine on! Shine on! O Ja-ru-sa-lem!" Next a woman's figure breaks out from the levee crowd with waving arms and swaying body and proclaims in a ringing treble:

"Oh, I long fo' to reach dat heavenly sho! To meet de Peter stan in' at de do. He say to me, 'O how you do! Come sit right yonder in de golden pew.' Fo' de good colo'd people do go clah froo To dip in de golden sea."

And the sympathetic brethren swells the melody:

"Den dip me! have me! Sisters, you and me! Come git in de boat, fo' we ah gwine to float Fo' to dip in de golden sea!"

This is evidently a favorite air and the throng becomes frantic with enthusiasm as it repeats it with many a quaint stanza. An ecstatic sister takes up the burden again with:

"Good Mr. Jesus a sitting in de pew: Oh! I look down on de world below An' watch dem white trash shuffling snow. While angel fishes up my toe While I dip in de golden sea!"

Then the responsive chorus swells out, and again the basso profundo of the crowd determines the sisters shall not have a monopoly of the solo parts, so he breaks in and crushingly refers to the erratic mother of them all:

"Oh! Adam he was fust' built man, Dat's jist' what de Good Book say; And Ebe come nex', den sin began, Dat's jist' what de Good Book say. Ebe bit de apple right in two, A wicked flag fo' Ebe to do; Yee, dat's what de Good Book say!"

But his effort to silence them is futile, for they join with him in unabated gusto in:

"Dat's jist' what de Good Book say, it am; Yee, dat's what de Good Book say; Jes' read it froo, you'll find it true, Fo' dat's what de Good Book say."

Another biblical expounder is quick at hand to continue the song:

"Dah wah a man, he name wah Lot, Dat's jist' what de Good Book say; An' he hab a wife an' daughter got, Dat's jist' what de Good Book say. He wife she talk an' make a hall, An' de Lord he turn her into salt; Oh! dat's what de Good Book say!"

But the swaying, time beating crowd on shore is now fast receding from view, and the boat's many voiced crew unites with heart stirring earnestness in:

"The gwine f'om de cotton fields, Ise gwine f'om de cane, Ise gwine f'om de log hut dat stan' down de lane; De boat am in de river, dat comes to take me off, An' Ise gwine to jine de ex-o-dus, and strike out fo' de no't."

And far over the moonlit waters faint notes of weird melodies came floating like a distant echo of this pathetic strain.—Chicago Herald.

The Girls Who Know It All.
 The very naughty girl, the sister or the cousin of the well known John who put so much ginger in his lemonade that he was really quite wild, you know, snatches a fearful joy from the newspaper stories of the cocaine habit, the quinine habit, the morphine habit and the rest. If, at any time in her life, any of these drugs have been prescribed by her physician, she recalls with wonder and amazement the feelings with which she took it, persuades herself that she was wildly excited, or lulled to a wonderful, dreamless slumber, and that she is enduring agonies of longing for another dose of the fell destroyer. To hear one of these innocent pussies chatter is amusing enough, but they really hurt themselves with their imaginations, and if they go on some other great moral reformer would but take them in hand he would do them good service. The ridiculousness of fancying that one is worse than one is does not make the practice less injurious. As for the real victims of the "habits," they are not so many that the doctors cannot attend to them.—Boston Transcript.

Cannot be Redeemed.
 Three thousand three hundred and seventy 1778-9, in denominations of $50, $25, $10, $5 and $2, were recently sent to the United States treasurer for redemption. Though yellow from age, the notes are in good condition; but the first comptroller has decided that they are barred by time and cannot be redeemed.—Chicago Herald.

It's an Art to Mix Drinks.
 "Oh, yes, it is a good deal of an art to mix drinks properly," said the bartender, as he set the cocktail on the mahogany and put fifteen cents in the drawer. "Some bartenders make big wages, too, because they can mix a drink in a fancy shape, but that's nothing compared with what some men make that can mix the liquors themselves. Almost any man can put a little Angostura and syrup and whiskey in a glass and stir it up, but when a man can put some raisins and pure spirits and a few drops in a barrel and make pretty good liquor, let's an artist and a dandy. Those fellows come high, but the wholesalers have to have 'em. I know one big liquor house in Chicago that pays a man $10,000 a year to make liquor for them. The other houses have tried to get him, but his firm won't let him go. You take a man that can have the head to the house say to him at supper: 'Carey & Curacao want 100 barrels '75 Maryland rye right off,' and can go and make up the whole order out of the raw material and get it barreled by 6 in the morning, and he's the life of the business; $10,000 a year isn't much for him."—Detroit Journal.
